After co-founding and running The Python Papers Anthology, which is the umbrella for The Python Paper, for the last 12 years including pre-inaugural issue; I felt that it is time to hand over the baton and reins of the anthology to a new co-Editor-in-Chief.

After an extensive search, I am glad to pass the baton and reins to Philippe Cohard from University of Montpellier, France, with effect from November 1, 2018.

I will continue my extensive support and contribution towards The Python Papers Anthology after stepping down as co-Editor-in-Chief. Python is still my primary development language.

Please join me to congratulate Philippe and please offer him your utmost support.
